NOTICE TO MARINERS & CONTRACTORS.

PROPOSALS for a new Lantern on White Island Light

Mariners will be informed by the following advertisement, that the Light on White Island, near Portsmouth harbor, in the State of New Hampshire, will in a short time be suspended while a new lantern will be erecting. The commencement and duration of such suspension will be hereafter an nounced by the superintendent.

Sealed Proposals will be received at this office, which the State of Portsmouth, July 10, 1836. 5

Sealed Proposals will be received at this office, until Sturrday, the 23d instant, at 12 o'clock, meridian, for removing the Lantern from White Island Light House, and placing thereon a Lantern of the tollowing description and dimensions, namely:—the frame work to be made of iron; the form octuan; the diameter, from square to square, seven feet eight inches; the engals from the top of the deck to the bottom of the frame wolk on the man of iron. The form octuan; the stone work, and secured with anchors. At the bottom of the frame will be an iron bar of sufficient size to receive the sashes. Each of the spaces between the posts (one excepted) to be filled with fron scales, with fifteen lights each, of double leg bus twelve inches square, of the first quality of Boston manufacture, and three squares of copper, twelve by twelve inches, to form the lower tier. Pour of said squares of the lower tier to have copper ventillators of three inches diameter, equidistant from each other, and so constructed as to be made tight when so required. The remaining space between the posts, to have an iron sash door to shrit against a rabbet, with suitable hinges and fastenings. The door to front Portsmouth harbor, and to contain six lights, twelve by twelve inches, and the remaining portion of said space to be filled with sash, glass and copper so as to conform as nearly as may be to the other sashes.

The state of the spaces and party to be according to the contains and pole of the contains and the conta which the sashes of the Lantern of Whale's Back Light House are constructed.

The dome of the Lantern is to be four feet and three inches high, formed by iron rafters, each one inch square, secured upon an iron plate which will form the top of the octagon frame, and concentrating in an iron hoop at the top, nine inches in diameter, six inches wide, and one quarter of an inch thick; which will form the funnel, over which is to be a copper ventilator sixteen inches in diameter and thirty inches high, with an elbow at the top one foot long: which ventilator must be governed by a vane so as to permit the smoke to escape. Said vane to be not less than three feet long and one foot and two inches wide—to be composed of an iton frame and covering of copper, and balanced upon an iron rod one inch square, inserted perpendicularly through a bar of iron in the aloresaid hoon, and secured in an iron bar three inches wide and five eightlis of an inch thick, resting upon the plate on the top of the posts and secured with copper or composition fastenings.

The lantern to be surrounded by an iron ballustrade, three feet nine inches high. The standards, eight in number, to be six feet five inches high, to be made of one and a quarter inch square iron, and inserted in the deck of the Light House with an angle, so as to stand perpendicularly on a line with the outside of the deck, and turned at the top nearly at right angles, and secured in the heads of the posts of the lantern, with iron screw bolts. Through the standards are to be placed three rails, fifteen inches court to be made of iron. placed three rails, fifteen inches apart, to be made of iron three-quarters of an inch square.

All the copper to be used in the aforesaid work, to be thirty two ounces to the square foot, and the putty for the glazing and for making the lantern tight where it may be needed, to be made of the best white lead.

White Island Light House is built of stone and sheathed with pine bords, and has a soap stone deck; and it will be necessary to take down several feet of the top of it, in order to remove the posts of the present Lantern and to insert the new ones. The removal aforesaid, and the re-building of the top of said Light House, including the finding of all the materials, so far as the old materials may in the opinion of the superintendent or such person as he may appoint to inspect and oversee the work, be deemed improper to be used, are to be embraced in the contract; also the transportation of all the materials to the Island, as also the covering the Lantern and appendages with three good coats of the first quality of and appendages with three good coats of the first quality of paint, and also the covering of the Light House, which is forty-four feethigh with two good coats of the first quality of paint. All the materials must be of the first quality, and the whole work executed in a firm, durable and workmanlike manner, to the acceptance of the superintendent, within such time as may be stipulated in the contract, for the faithful performance of which, bonds will be required. The superintendent reserving to himself the right to make any alterations, improvements and additions in the progress of the work, as he may deem expedient, by allowing the contractor an additional compensation not exceeding the actural expense.

Persons making proposals will please endorse thereon as follows: "Proposals for erecting a Lantern on White Island Light House," DANIEL P. DROWN, Superintendent of Light Houses in New Hampshire.

POETRY.

For the Boston Morning Post. LOVE.

They err who deem love's brightest hour In blooming youth is known; Its purest, tenderest, holiest power In later life is shown; -

When passions, chastened and subdued, To riper years are given, And earth, and earthly things are view'd In light that breaks from Heaven.

It is not in the flush of youth, Or days of cloudless mirth, We feel the tenderness and truth Of love's devoted worth ;-

Life then is like a tranquil stream Which flows in sunshine bright-And objects, mirror'd in it, seem To share its sparkling light!

In youth, 'tis like the meteor's gloom, Which dazzles and sweeps by-In after life its splendors seem Link'd with eternity! Therg-h, July 14th.

AMUSING EXTRACTS.

Chess.-The state of the match for fifty guineas, between the rival chess clubs of Paris and Westminster, being now much in favor of the former, the Parisans have given an intimation of a second challenge, to be decided over the board-three of their leading players to meet three of the Westminster club, either at Dover, Calais, or Boulogne. Messrs St. Amand, Boncour, and Mouret, are likely to be deputed by the French club, and the Westminster club would not be at a loss to furnish a double set to meet this array of force, provided their players can find leisure for the jaunt .-There is little doubt of the match being played in June or July .- London paper.

A Barrister of some standing once fought a duel-his coat was perforated, and he commemorated either his valor or his escape by an annual dinner to his friends. On these occasions the damaged garment was always produced. At the last anniversary, Lord Brougham slyly observed-" W-, we have often seen the coat you wore on this occasion, now show us the breeches."

Irish Description of a Female Dancer .- "The lady is proprietor of a person about six feet high; legs that might make the fortune of a chairman, and feet, as the Irish say, ' wid a fine howld an the flure.' "

Too Much of a Good Thing .- A captain mentioned in "Peter Simple" describes his mother as being so splendid a pianoforte player, that, upon one occasion, when she was delighting her friends with her performance, she introduced an imitation of thunder so exquisite, that the cream for tea became sour, besides three casks of beer in the cellar !

Dr. Johnson once paid a visit to the late Lord Stow-ell, when a student at Oxford. He found him busily employed one day in collecting snails in the garden of his lodgings, and throwing them over the wall into his neighbor's premises. "Young man," said Johnson sternly, "this is an unjust and an ungenerous act-I am ashamed of you." "Why sir," replied young Scott, "do you not see that I only threw them over one wall —and on the other side is a Dissenter." "Say you so," said Johnson, "then I'll help you."

Anecdote of Napoleon .- When Napoleon returned to his palace, immediately after his defeat at Waterloo, he continued many hours without taking any refreshments. One of the grooms of the chamber ventured to serve up some coffee, in his cabinet, by the hands of a child, whom Napoleon had occasionally distintinguished by his notice. The emperor sat motionless, with his hand over his eyes. The page stood patiently before him, gazing with infantine curiosity on an image which presented so strong a contrast to his own figure of simplicity and peace; at last the little attendant presented his tray, exclaiming, in the familiarity of an age which knows so little distinctions, " Eat, sire-it will do you good."

The emperor looked at him, asked, "Do you not belong to Gonesse?" (a village near Paris.) "No, sire, I come from Pierrefite."

"Where your parents have a cottage and some acres of land?" " Yes, sire."

" There is true happiness," replied the extraordinary being, who was still emperor of France and king

The following are from Coleridge :- " Vivid impressions are too frequently mistaken by the young and ardent for clear conceptions." "A man who wishes for an end, the means of which are criminal, is chargeable with all the guilt." "Quarrels of anger ending in tears are favorable to love in its spring-tide, as plants are found to grow very rapidly after a thunder storm with rain." Martin Burney, a chemist, while earnestly explaining the three kinds of acids, was stopped by Charles Lamb, who said, "The best of all kinds of acid, however, as you know, Martin, is uity, assid uitv.'

A Statesman's Policy.—Godoy, Prime Minister of the Peace, (former Spanish Prime Minister,) says, in his recently published Memoirs, "If a man of talent inspired some apprehension, I lost no time in drawing him over to the service of the State: when suitably employed, he ceased to be dangerous-he became

BOSTON MORNING POST.

WEDNESDAY, JULY 20, 1836.

The cause of Democracy in Vermont is in a very flourishing condition. The nomination of Mr Bradley for Governor is very popular, and the utmost confidence is felt in his election. The Burlington Sentinel gives the most cheering accounts. In addition to the Spartan band who have stood by the cause of Democracy through all its vicissitudes in this State, a large number who have kept aloof from it, from various causes, are now enrolling themselves under its banner. This is particularly the case in Windham county, where modern whiggery seems to have been almost entirely deserted. The case is similar in Caledonia county-there being no such thing there now as a whig party. The same is in a degree true in other sections of the State. A calm has succeeded the excitement which has prevailed for several years-and the course pursued by the whig and a portion of the antimasonic parties, has been favorable to calm reflection, and has left liberal-minded men at liberty to attach themselves to the party whose political principles were nearest in unison with their own.

Information Wanted .- Mr Amory Jewett left his family on the third of June last, it is feared in a fit of insanity, and has not been seen by them or heard of since. He had on when he went away a black hat of the latest fashion, low crown, a black coat, light fawn-colored vest, light mixed pantaloons, and boots; a black bombazeen stock, and pearl studs in the bosom of his shirt, with green stones; is 27 years of age, about 5 feet 8 or 9 inches in height, light complexion, blue eyes and dark hair; has a bump on his forehead, over his right eye, quite perceptible, occasioned by a hurt when he was a child. Should he be living, and any one will give information where he is, it will much relieve his distressed family. * * From feelings of humanity, the editors of papers, particularly of the Southern papers, are requested to give the above one insertion, at least, and they will much oblige an afflicted family.

A Trick worth an Egg .- A French gentleman, of Chatelet, has, it is confidently stated, made the curious discovery that egg-shells are quite equal to hops for

An attempt was made to blow up the bridge between Cleaveland and Ohio city, not long ago; but, fortunately, it was unsuccessful.

Pure Water .- This great and essential requisite to the health and comfort of our citizens, every person will allow, should be immediately introduced. No time should be lost by our City Government in taking some decisive and important step towards securing to the community the benefits derived from a copious supply of this pure element -The daily failure of wells, the filth from drains, privies, and surface of the streets, with which they become impregnated by percolation, together with the noxious and offensive character of our rain water, renders a resort to some remedy necessary, to preserve our community from fire, pestilence, and disease. We have already had sufficient warning, by the great fire of the city of New York, that the fell destroyer may single us next to sport with .-Though the labors of our fire department are on such eccasions incessant and persevering, it too often happens a building might be saved were there a sufficiency of water. Situated as we are at present, we have no safety in repose. The midnight incendiary takes advantage of the scarcity of our only means of stopping the destructive ravages of fire, in those parts of the city most exposed, and as we now are, and have been, all human means are of little avail. I would ask if there is a single family at present in the city whose cistern water is not blackened to a more or less degree by the soot from coal which lodges on our house-tops? Is this not an evil daily increasing-and which already is of such extent, that many are compelled to purchase river water for domestic purposes? Boston has long been celebrated for attention to education and cleanliness. We enjoy a pure atmosphere, untainted by the odors of vegetable and animal matter. The great benefits of our sewers and drains can only be appreciated by a visit to our sister city, New York; and who is there among our citizens who would be willing to dispense with these subterraneous channels? It is only after the enjoyment of a luxury that we are able to feel the loss of it. Such would be the case in regard to pure

Ask a citizen of Philadelphia if he would be willing the Schuylkill should cease to flow in the iron veins of conduit which radiate through every avenue of that metropolis? What would be his answer? Not for a ten-fold expense would be surrender the enjoyment and conveniences he daily receives from that noble river. We have advantages, almost at our very doors, of procuring an abundant quantity of the purest water, and at a very moderate expense, compared with the cost of introduction into many other cities. We are informed, and experience has proved, that such works must be externely

Then why do our city authorities hesitate? Are they waiting for a public expression of the citizens in Faneuil Hall? If they are, and this is all that prevents them "laying the shoulder to the wheel," there is not a reasonable man in the community who would say "Nay!" If the subject were submitted to the baffet of our citizens, the majority in favor of the measure would be parallel to that of New York. What better inducement had the corporation of that city to engage in the splendid project of improvement of an aqueduct from the Croton and Bronx than the wishes of the citizens expressed by the majority of 11,367.

A FIREMAN.

Mr. Editor-I regret to perceive, from a paragraph in your paper of the 16th inst., that some mischievous person has imposed upon you with a fictitious account of a difference of opinion between Mr. Finn and the "Boston Young Men's Society for Meliorating the Condition of the Indians." I beg leave, sir, officially, to assure you that no such difference of opinion is known to exist, as no communication has, as yet, taken place between the Society and that gentleman, except the tender of a request to him for the delivery of their next annual oration, to which an answer is daily and anxiously expected. The envious malevolence which could circulate a report of the nature you refer to, merits the indignant scorn of all good citizens.

W. PARAS STEBBINS, President B. Y. M. S. M. C. I. P. S. You are at liberty to make any use of the above which you deem proper. We have sull confidence in the veracity of Mr. Stebbins, bac, notwithstanding his denial of the correctness of the report he alludes to, he will excuse us for saying that it is not so groundless as he imagines. We know that he, although President of the Society, is unacquainted with some of the transactions of the Board of Managers. A knowledge of these transactions has been cautiously kept from him by those who participated in them. We do not allege that a written correspondence has taken place between Mr. Finn and the Board-but this much we do affirm, that Mr. Finn, upon being apprised of the fact that the funds of the Young Men's Society had been, through the intrigues of the Board of Managers, unbeknown to the President, " diverted from their legitimate purposes and given to an auxiliary branch of the Anti-Slavery Society," as has since been publicly stated, refused to hold any communication with the Board. He said, to a personal and intimate acquaintance, from whom we have these facts, that his numerous friends in Louisiana would despise him should he be guilty of having any connection with an association which had openly or surreptiously aided the efforts of the abolitionists. Mr. F., we think, is perfectly justified in the course he has adopted; had he yielded to the request of the Board of Managers, or held any written correspondence with them, and the fact become known in New Orleans that they were secretly abolitionists, his neck would not be safe, as he feelingly remarked, upon his return there.

A Lunatic by the name of Bridge, from Philadelphia, drove up to the President's house in Washington, a few days since, entered, and squaring himself in the midst of the hall, (says the Globe) addressed himself to Mr James O'Neal, the porter-told him he was Chief Magistrate of the United States-that he had come to take possession; and when asked by what authority, he said by authority of the people of Philadelphia. After some inquiries about the number of domestics he took his leave, as he said, to demand the keys of the Treasury from the Secretary. Accordingly, we understand, he opened a correspondence with Mr Woodbury, and with the other Secretaries-but his mind running upon the money especially, he waited upon Secretary Woodbury, first at his house, and then at his office, and pertinaciously insisted on a delivery of the keys and a surrender of the office. When asked for his credentials, he would produce none. It was enough, he said, that it was the will of the people of Philadelphia.

Finding that this did not accomplish his ends, he addressed another note to Mr Woodbury, telling him that "in order to prevent the business of the States from being any longer interrupted, he would call a meeting of four per cent. the Senate." With this view he took his way to the Secretary of the Senate-but we learn that this unlucky Whig President, falling in with some of the police, has been lodged, for the present, in the same place with his royal rival, the renowned Richard Lawrence.

The Messrs Harper have just issued an Historical Romance, entitled "Elkswatawa; or the Prophet of the West." It is principally occupied with the details and exposition of the policy of Tecumseh and his celebrated brother, from whom the work derives its name. It affords an explanation of the motives which in the time of Tecumseh as well as at other periods, have aroused the native of the soil to contend for his liberties and his land. The work is interspersed with descriptions of western scenery and the frontier settlers, and will repay an attentive perusal. The typographical execution deserves especial commendation. A boat with five persons in it was upset while passing between New York and Jersey City on Saturday last, and two drowned-a man by the name of Lawrence, and a lad. The lad was wholly unknown to the others. He is described as being a well-dressed boy of about 14, and asked those in the boat, when about to shove off, to let him go and take a sail. The poor fellow little thought it was to go to his death .-Neither of the bodies have been recovered.

Six men were arrested in New York on Sunday for being engaged in a desperate row opposite the house of John Murphy, in Mott street. They had dreadfully wounded Murphy in the head with a shovel, and a piece of brick which they had thrown at him, struck his brother a severe blow on the forehead, which laid the flesh open to the bone, and stabled his son in the arm with a knife. The life of the elder Murphy is

We have seen with pleasure the beautiful edition of Don Quixote, just published in its original tongue in this city, and for sale at the bookstores. We have found that ocsides a very great abandance of notes from the most celebrated commencators of this classical and popular work, collected, no doubt, with much care and labor, Jones. She was charged with being a common drunkard, and indispensable to the clear understanding of the text, which the teachers and students of the Spanish language will duly appreciate, the Editor has reduced to a reasonable length the great and often wearisome paragraphs of the original, following in this the example of the best translations in various European languages, an improvement adopted for the first time, which, together with the copious notes, we think will render this edition more valuable than any other extant, to all classes of readers. The portrait of Cervantes, and the illustrations and maps, are handsomely executed-and from the well known accuracy of the editor of this work in his various publications in Spanish, to facilitate the acquisition of this language, we may confidently recommend this edition of Don Quixote to all the admirers of less that is said about decent behaviour, according to presthis nable language.

News to the 2d July from St Augustine has been received at Charleston. There was no news of the Indians at Picolata; it appears to be a general impression that they have gone to a general corn dance of the

It was reported to be very sickly at Fort Drane, and more than half the troops are on the sick list. Five out of seven officers were sick.

All the posts are hereafter to be considered as dependencies on Fort Drane, where Gov. Call has assumed the command.

By an express at St Augustine we have news from Fort Drane to the 5th inst. Col. Warren, with 50 mounted men, surprised 6 Indians at Capt Priest's house, 9 miles from Micanopy, and killed 5 of them. The Indians were comfortably ensconced, luxuriating after their victories under musquitoea net. Billy Johny, a chief of some influence, was among the killed. No quarter was given, though he, un-Indian-like, begged very hard for it. Alex. Watson's plantation was destroyed June 18th, by a party of Indians, with whom a party of whites had an encounter the day previous, but had to retreat. Loss 30 to $40,000. The Indians obtained 2500 lbs of lead

Important-Texas.-The reported return of the Mexicans upon Texas, is confirmed, though we still doubt that their number extends to the exaggerated amount described.

The New Orleans papers of July 2, state that the arrival of the steamer Caspian from Natchitoches, brings information that 7000 Mexicans, including the 4000 who had been unwisely permitted to retire by the Texican government, and the remainder of recruits from Metamoras, had advanced to Guadaloupe, and that General Rusk had retreated across the Brassos to assume a position in which he can give them (now aided, ton) a suitable reception.

POLICE COURT.

A lady of many names and many colors. - A crushed straw bonnet and a striped red shawl thick enough for a horse-blanket, veiled some of the charms of Mrs Honors, alias the common cognomena of Smith, Brown, and but would have better justified a charge of being a common libel on the sex of which she was an atrociously ugly and unworthy representative. There was a lingering ray of conscience, however, straggling through the misty darkness of her soul, like a fire-bug through a dense fog over a morass, and when she was called upon to say guilty, or not, she replied-" I am not going to tell a falsehood; I'm guilty of drinking a little spirit. I know I have done wrong, and I'm sorry for it. But for to go for to say, that I'm a common drunkard, is a little too hard, and I hope when people come to appear against me again, they'll tell the truth as I do-that's all. I defy any of them to say that they ever saw me any way indecent in behaviour, speech, or conduct, in any any shape or form." To the last part of Mary Ann's plea, His Honor replied-" The ent appearances, I think will be the better." In good truth, Mary Ann's appearance did not lend much countenance to her own defence-all the prominent points of her face were most horribly blotched, but not bruised-as if she had fallen upon a heap of burning embers; but as her nose and lips were chiefly disfigured, it is more probmouth of a miniature elephant in a fancy goods shop, set fire to her lips, nose, and eye-brows. An officer, premising that he had known Mary Ann for more than twenty years, was about to enlighten, edify, and interest the Court with a memoir of her melancholly history, had not His Honor, with evident spasms-signs, we mean-of oppugnation-begged of him, with most beseeching accents, to omit the doleful tale :-" 'Tis not at all necessary to enter Latest from Roxbury.—The lessee of the Roxbury into any further particulars about this detestable case."—

State and National Authority in conflict .- A fine looking fellow, named William Gerritt, a petty officer attached to the receiving-ship Columbus, was brought up for attempting to rescue a prisoner from Constable Holden, on Monday. The prisoner in question was George den for an assault; and as Gerritt was instructed to see that none of the seamen belonging to the Columbus absconded or were taken off, he had an impression, that it was also his duty to take care that none of them were Uncle Sam only, and he therefore collared the constable when he attempted to execute a peace-warrant on Perdue. The offence being beyond the jurisdiction of the Police Court, Gerritt was ordered to recognize in the sum of $100.00 for his appearance for trial at the Municipal.

Desperate attempt at Suicide.-An incorrigible lubricator, named Willard F. Curlis, was arrested and confined in the watch house, where he stripped himself entirely of his apparel, and made the "night hideous," and the Charleys savage, by his unintermitted howlings. When conveyed to the jail office in the morning, he privily twisted his garters taught round his throat, for the purpose of strangling himself. When discovered he was quite black in the face. When at the bar, he appeared to be confounded sorry at his narrow escape from the "unfortunate Miss Bailey's" fate, " who hung herself one morning in her garters." Six months House of Correction.

"Mr James Read, the pugilist, performed his feat of strength and speed on Tuesday last, much to the satisfaction of all his friends. He ran from Newcastle to this city, drew a sulky weighing 240 lbs. one mile of the distance, and picked up on the Wilmington bridge 50 potatoes, one yard apart, and carried each singly to the end of the bridge, in one hour and five minutesbeing 25 minutes less than the time limited. The whole distance passed over has been computed at about eight miles."

New York Journal of Public Morals :-"Had Robinson been condemned, an immense public sympathy would have been excited in his favor, and the aseness of his profligate course comparatively overlooked in the pity, that one so young and so promising should be brought to an ignominious death. As it is, that public sympathy in his favor does not exist, and he is remembered, not with pity, but with indignation and scorn, and his name is coupled with infamy. More is probably accomplished for the cause of public morals, by his acquittal, than would have been by his conviction."

The fourth was celebrated in Philadelphia in a manner worthy of the occasion. The Hon. Levi Woodbury in reply to the invitation by the committee to be present at the celebration, sent the following sentiment-The Cause of Democracy-The greatest good to the greatest number.

By the Committee in reply:

She procured an ounce, and took it at intervals during an hour, on a lemon. After she had swallowed the whole, she informed the people of the house where she boarded, what she had done, and although medical assistance was called, she resisted every effort to induce her to take medicine, declaring her wish and object was to

The painted by his splendid painting is from one of the many sketches of the illustrations of Scripture History designed by the late B. West, Fsq., for a Gallery intended to have been formed by his late majesty, George III., and has been exhibited in London for 5 months to upwards of 80,000 visiters. The effect of it is truly impressive and powerful—it is a scene of awful sublimity and grandeur, and shows the truth of the denunciations in the Bible against Jerusalem. As a work of art it must inspire every one with admiration at the prodigious efforts of human genius, and the gigantic ideas of the artist, and such is the extraordinary illusions with which it is painted, that the mind is led to contemplate it as a subject in reality.
